Private Mad-Houses.
How they are made to serve as Prison-The Modern Lettice of Cash.

The letters of cash were one of the institutions of Bourbon tyranny which aimed in bringing about the French revolution.
Thanks to a slip of paper to which the king's name was attached, any man, no matter how innocent of crime, could be snatched from his friends and family and consigned to a dungeon in one of the prisons of the state. There was no appeal for him and no redress. He was arrested at the pleasure of the king, and could not be released at his pleasure. Men who had been guilty of no wrong were thus made the victims of spite and enmity of self interest, and of a man's liberty was safe.

In his 'Tale of Two Cities,' Charles Dickens shows the operation of this influence of tyranny, and Barriere made it the backbone of his once famous play, 'The Dead Heart.' By George, the letters of cash were truthfully described as a sliver shot in the hands of a foot-pad who never thought of the king, and could not be released at his pleasure. Men who had been guilty of no wrong were thus made the victims of spite and enmity of self interest, and
of a man's liberty was safe.

as it should have done long ago.—New York Dispatch.

The Real Paris.
French Criticism of the Gay Capital—Some Paris and France.

Not long ago many visitors to Paris returned home full of enthusiasm for that lovely city, and anxious to know why London and New York and Philadelphia and other great towns could not be made like the French capital, says the Philadelphia Ledger. Now the French themselves are criticizing the municipal administration of Paris, and from the account given of it it is a recent number of the leading review people can get some useful hints. With a population approaching 2,500,000, less than a third are natives of the city, for it is a central point for skilled workmen and all persons from far and near. It has about 80,000 houses, with over 1,000,000 persons, of which two-thirds are used as dwelling and one-third for business and the former three-fourths rent for less than $100 a year, housing 1,000,000 of Parisians. While London has more than 200,000 buildings, Paris has more than 100,000, and Paris owes its own household to large speculative corporations, which look more to their own profit than to the health or comfort of the workmen. Even the important business of the city is done by great companies, and with their 9,000 calls, 1,200 omnibuses and horse-cars, and 15,000 private carriages, there is not a single want of cheap and convenient means of transportation of the growing suburbs.
The French Republic has in its capital an exclusive privilege law, until 1912, and at present fixed by law, pays to the city $200,000 annually. The gas and water companies are also private corporations, with long terms of exclusive right to supply the city, and pay over $5,000,000 annually into the city treasury. Water is scarce and gas is dear as compared with other cities, and the city is forced to raise rates, but in spite of this brought by the city companies to the letter of their contracts, and refuse to meet the growing demand for a concession in the interest of the consumer. Paris has a police force consisting of 11,000 men in service, and the annual arrests made average 40,000, of which number 20,000 are old offenders and 3,000 are strangers.
The firemen number 17,000 men, costing $400,000 a year. Over 400,000 persons receive assistance at a cost of nearly $7, 000,000, and 125,000 poor are registered as entitled to aid, while 22,000 beds in the hospitals supply care to the sick and wounded. There are charity 'houses' for old men and women, with room for 9,000 inmates, while for children over $1,000,000 was spent in fighting the dreadful mortality that out of the future population in Paris. The city of Paris has spent over $182 on education for 170,000 children in the Public Schools, while 70,000 were in private schools, and by subsidies and taught mostly by nuns, and members of the different religious orders. The income and expenditures of the city of Paris in 1883 were over $50,000,000, and of its receipts nearly $30,000,000 were produced by a tax called the 'octroi'—the 'king's eighth'—levied at the gates of Paris on all provisions that enter the city, thus adding to the cost of living. The largest item of expenditure was the interest on the municipal debt, and as that grows faster than the taxable value of property, now put at $400,000,000, and the indirect sources of income, the 'octroi', and the proceeds of the sale of the city's water, and transportation monopolies, the future, with its growing needs for sewerage, and the necessities of the city, and demands of better methods of making and keeping Paris healthy, is a matter of earnest consideration. Much attention is paid to the numerous reforms proposed in this country and elsewhere for a change in existing municipal governments. In Paris there is a council elected by universal suffrage, but its action is largely subject to revision and veto by the Prefect, who is appointed by the general government, and hence a constant conflict, one party trying to make the local authority sovereign and independent, the other seeking to reduce it to a representation of taxpayers. The issue is still to be decided, but it is of immense importance to the future of Paris, and it is of interest for all cities struggling to balance receipts and expenditures, and at the same time to meet the requirements of great and growing population crowded in the principal cities of both the old world and the new.

WARREN LELAND, whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises of America, says that while a purveyor from New York has sold a million-gallon quantity of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in Belleville, he has not sold a single bottle of the same elsewhere.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to many other men, and has had never less than five dozen of it sold in Belleville.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S laborers broke his leg. On the day the doctor came, he found the leg so swollen that it was impossible to move it. He applied AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and in a few days the swelling was gone, and the leg was as good as new.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this medicine in blood poisons enables him to give patients much valuable information.

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

The Baptist church and St. George's.

As is invariably the case when the members of the above parish, give an entertainment, they were favored last night with most propitious weather and a large attendance. In every respect it was a most successful, and thoroughly so, as the ladies left nothing undone to provide an excellent supper and a delightful entertainment. The city hall was thrown open, displaying several tables with all manner of good things. In a few minutes every place was occupied, and without the slightest confusion, the waiters promptly supplied each guest, and all were delighted. With the good company and the appropriate refreshments they then withdrew to the concert room to enjoy the intellectual and musical part of the entertainment. The Rev. E. W. Sibbald presided. The Chaffinch Band occupied seats on the platform, and opened the proceedings with an overture. They played several very fine selections during the evening in excellent style, all of which were received with great favor. Some were especially rendered by Mrs. Bristol, of Napesee, Miss Sisson, Mr. Bellwell, Mr. Corbett, and the Rev. Mr. Sibbald, eliciting a number of encores. Miss Desmond and Mr. Dawson gave recitations of great merit, and were required to respond to encores. A piano solo by Miss Blund Corbett was worthy of special mention. The very pleasant and enjoyable entertainment was brought to a close by all singing the National Anthem led by the band.

Accidentally Shown. James Drayley, Hamilton, says: "I read the testimonial for Mett's rapid cure and found that I had not to go to New York, Philadelphia, Louisiana or Texas to find him, but that he was in Belleville."

Worthy of Imitation. The Story Told by an Indian to a Kingston Reporter.

Some Strange Reminiscences of a Vicinity

Made Famous in Modern Literature.

But speaking of the claims set up by the way of Scriptural significance for places in the vicinity there is one place, at least, the pretensions of which are duly authentic.

I refer to Heliopolis, the "City of the sun," the ruins of which upon the present site of Heliopolis, about five miles distant from Cairo. This famous place is identified as the One of the Bible, where Joseph took the daughter of the priest Potiphar to wife. The site of the once important city is appropriately marked by the obelisk that has been discovered with the exception of a small one in the Neopolis of Memphis. The obelisk of the obelisk (for obelisks are not erected in pairs) passed away over four or five thousand years ago. The remaining one is a shaft sixty feet high, of red granite, covered with hieroglyphics.

The obelisk on the pyramid is the top of the pyramid, and the successive steps of the obelisk are the successive steps of the obelisk, and the successive

steps of the obelisk, and the successive

For Christmas

What more useful and acceptable present can be given than

A Handsome Lamp?

Many of those now offered for sale by

F. H. ROUS & Co.

would make elegant ornaments in a drawing room or sitting room by day, and at night the effect would be tenfold increased by the flood of light from their powerful burners.

NEVER

since coal oil was introduced have lamps been so elegant in appearance and so moderate in cost as this year, and certainly

NEVER BEFORE

have coal oil burners attained so near perfection as in the department of

Hanging Lamps

we have taken the lead for several years and believe that we can suit the most fastidious and exacting. We are today opening out some new ones which we think are exceedingly good value.
We will guarantee our prices to be as low as any, and we invite inspection whether a purchase is made or not.

DAIRY INTELLIGENCE.

His Shores are Teeming-Fruit.

A Colored Minister in North Carolina whose Past is Something to be Proud of.

Do not think that business men are not supposed to laugh at any order, however extravagant, that may be sent them—but if one of them is a real glib man when he receives one of these, it is not because he is not a business man, but because he is a colored man.

It is a colored minister in North Carolina, N. C., and his light weight when it comes to the business of the world is a fact.

He stands 6 feet 10 inches high, weighs 140 pounds, and is a powerful man.

Daily Intelligence.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 31, 1884.

The latest issue of the INTELLIGENCER, of Dec. 18th, and the thought lingers a retrospective as well as an anticipatory mood. The old year is dying. A few more vibrations of the pendulum, a few more circles by the hands on the dial, and the bells of the thousand temples will ring the close of the old year. And then, with the inspiration of a happy chance, these same bells will ring the welcome to the New Year.

Ring out the old, ring in the new.
Ring, happy bells, across the sky,
The year is dying, let him die.
Ring out the old, ring in the new.
Ring, happy bells, across the sky,
The year is dying, let him die.

We can't help quoting those familiar lines by Tennyson, as they are always so appropriate at this particular season. There is a mystical charm about the simple words that will comfort and soothe our hearts. We are disposed to indulge in a little pessimistic thought; and as most affairs are the case when the past is recalled, a tinge of sadness creeps over the soul and each of our mortal wifings. The year is dying, and with the indistinguishable of the steered songsters, aroha midnight melody for the funeral, mark we repeat with Tennyson again:

Ring out the old, ring in the new,
Ring, happy bells, across the sky,
The year is dying, let him die.
Ring in the new, ring in the new,
Ring, happy bells, across the sky,

The world may be, and doubtless is, growing better, as we know it is growing wiser and much richer; but sometimes our retrospective search turns up what cannot be safely classed as corroborative proof of the first assumption. Men are still governed, not by the laws of reason, but by the passions, and the determination to realize, what is made an object of life creates a friction that disturbs harmony and retards the national good. Not the absence of human progress and Christian faith and benevolence have augmented with the circling years, and to-day we stand many degrees nearer "the common love of good" than when the first of the world began to measure deeds with opposite forces. Therefore, while we recall that which has a sombre tone, the light of truth and virtue breaks through the darkness and inspires the heart with a joyous well-come for the coming year.

There have been some strange nations since 1848 began. Earth's nations have been restless under strange provocations to "they have and let slip the dogs of war." Some have been armed beyond the limit of forbearance, and have unleashed the sword, to make head-on of men. France has recalled the spirit of ancient republicanism, and has entered upon an aggressive policy of conquest and subjection. In Algeria, in Madagascar, and in China, the tri-color flag over French armaments, marching against the impotent force. We may misinterpret the motive and misunderstand the cause, still, to us France scarcely presents an honorable record in these pending campaigns. Grave liberties are more or less at stake, and are the white dove of peace flutters wings over the distracted provinces, other nations may become involved, and the consequences be more deplorable. Egypt has become a theatre of intrigue, perfidy, and rebellion. The position assumed by England a few years ago has left her sole arbiter in settling the vexed question of sovereignty, but her authority is not unquestioned. With jealous friendship, and with the treacherous assistance, she allies with the progress of events that seem to point to the inevitable extension of England's influence and power. Just now her brave soldiers are contending with Nile's extracts and desert sands in a laborious effort to penetrate the torrid region that intervenes between the reach of civilization and beguiled Khartoum. They encounter insurmountable hardships, and suffer untold privations, not to meet and conquer an enemy, or subjugate a kingdom, but to release from enslaving an English officer and his faithful wife. That the object of this noble sacrifice will be fully achieved under the skillful guidance of Gen. Wolseley we take for granted, and when achieved the world will know better how to estimate the principle that was involved. To us Canadians a special interest is given by the presence of several hundreds of our countrymen who have been entrusted with the arduous duty of transporting men and munitions of war to the almost unpassable Nile. We wish the record of their achievements, and an abiding faith in their skill, devotion and endurance.

Ireland is still a hot bed of sedition and crime. The people of that unhappy island seem doomed to a galling yoke of servile bondage, and their own heads are bowed in bondage. Remedial legislation has been promulgated, and it is manifest that the Parliament of Great Britain is willing to condone men in order that Ireland may be pacified, but fanatical sedition, aided by astounding credulity, defeats the effort of friends. Gigantic wrongs, their undelivered, exist, and still may be, but the nation and with undiminished energy. So long as Ireland is the prey of despotic and unscrupulous passions, so long will her emerald glades remain unutilized, and will not satisfy the very people. The early months of the year were largely unmemorable by the discovery of the Greely party in the Arctic region, where they had been imprisoned in frigid claus for many years, and when a number of heavily armed men, and a few sledges, were sent to their rescue, and the party was rescued. The discovery of the Greely party in the Arctic region, where they had been imprisoned in frigid claus for many years, and when a number of heavily armed men, and a few sledges, were sent to their rescue, and the party was rescued.

Canada has continued to back in the summer of peace and plenty. Her frontiers are full and her people are contented and happy. Her Congress has passed a bill for the purpose of settling the boundary between Canada and the United States, and the bill has been passed by the Senate. The bill is for the purpose of settling the boundary between Canada and the United States, and the bill has been passed by the Senate.

Thus we close our reminiscences of the old year, and we look forward to the new year with a feeling of hope and confidence. We are sure that the new year will be a year of progress and prosperity for all nations. We are sure that the new year will be a year of progress and prosperity for all nations.
